MISSISSIPPI STATE UNIVERSITY—The Department of Sociology invites applications for an Assistant Professor for the social work program to begin in fall 2020. We seek candidates who are committed to teaching undergraduate social work students, conducting scholarly research, and engaging in service activities. Completion of the Ph.D. in social work or a related field and the MSW from a CSWE-accredited program are required. Applicants must have at least two years of social work practice experience and the ability to teach across the undergraduate curriculum.

The department has more than 120 undergraduate social work majors (BSW), plus majors in criminology (BS) and sociology (BS, MS, PhD). The department has strong ties to the African American Studies Program, Gender Studies Program, the Research and Training Center on Blindness and Low Vision, the Social Science Research Center, the National Strategic Planning & Analysis Research Center, and the Southern Rural Development Center.
